SEMESTER IN QATAR

Each fall, this semester long academic program hosts students at Northwestern’s media school in Doha, Qatar. Northwestern University in Qatar (NU-Q) offers distinctive Global South focused coursework in communication, journalism, and the liberal arts, with special attention to Middle East Studies. Semester in Qatar (SiQ) is open to Northwestern students from Medill, the School of Communication, and the Weinberg College of Arts & Sciences, and SiQ especially welcomes applications from students interested in the Middle East and North African Studies (MENA). Students study under an excellent faculty and alongside an accomplished, diverse student body.

NU-Q is a globally embedded institution; it is one of three campuses of Northwestern (Chicago, Doha, Evanston) and one of several institutions in the Qatar Foundation’s Education City in Doha, Qatar. Our mission is to mentor and educate students to become creative, ethical, and impactful communicators across cultural and national boundaries. We are committed to academic excellence, to a vibrant student life, and to high-level undergraduate student research and media making, particularly on the Global South. Located at the confluence of continents, NU-Q is a diverse global community with approximately 500 students from 60 countries. Doha is a media city – home to Al Jazeera, the Doha Film Institute, English and Arabic newspapers and magazines, digital media enterprises, and advertising and public relations firms.

SiQ students will have the opportunity to engage with NU-Q’s distinctive Institute for Advance Study in the Global South (#IAS_NUQ), a community of evidence-based storytellers devoted to understanding the media, cultures, societies, politics, and history of the countries of the Global South. This includes attending panels, seminars, conferences, and other Global south focused events.

TRAVEL REQUIREMENTS

Overview

Participating students must adhere to the pre-departure requirements for student travel. Upon program acceptance, students must:

1. Complete GLObal Gateway assignments
2. Meet with their NU Academic Adviser
3. Attend NU-Q Pre-Departure Orientation
4. Ensure thorough review of this SiQ Guide and understanding of all program requirements including visa processes

Pre-Departure Orientation

Students selected for Semester in Qatar are required to participate on the pre-departure orientation. The session will be scheduled after the confirmation of attendance for the upcoming fall term and will always take place in the evening to accommodate both attendees from Qatar and Evanston. NUQ Staff from the Academic Affairs, Academic Advising, Student Experience and Business & Finance will be available to answer any questions on student life, housing, courses, and money matters.

Meet With Your Academic Adviser

A vital requirement in planning your pre-departure sessions involves meeting your adviser to prepare a schedule of classes for the fall term. Students should conduct their own research about the types of courses offered at NUQ to determine those of specific interest before meeting the adviser. Please see the section of this guide called “Academic Planning” for more information about NUQ courses and the requirements of the SiQ program.

Visa Processing

Entry into Qatar

Qatar requires all students who are studying and living in Qatar to obtain an entry visa and residence permit. To begin the process, please scan and email a color copy of your passport to Virginia Naag, (virginia.naag@northwestern.edu) upon program acceptance.

Once you are in-country, the residence permit process will begin, which includes medical testing (for HIV Aids and Tuberculosis) and finger printing. You are not allowed to travel out of Qatar while the residency/QID is under process.

Exiting Qatar

Before exiting Qatar, student residence visas must be cancelled. All residence visas in Qatar must be cancelled and cleared while residents are still inside the country. Residence visas should be cancelled 30 days before departure to ensure that all exit clearances can be completed. Once these visas are cancelled, reentry to Qatar on that visa is not possible.

Check-out process include:

1. QF Housing clearance and check-out
2. NU-Q finance exit session
3. Closure of any bank account that has been opened
4. Return any items checked out of the NU-Q library or the Cage (production equipment)
5. Visa cancellation

ACADEMIC PLANNING

Course Offerings

SiQ students take courses alongside Northwestern University in Qatar students at NU-Q's state-of-the-art campus in Education City. All classes are taught in English.

Doha Seminar

SiQ students will be enrolled in the program's signature course, Doha Seminar, which engages students in the exchange of ideas discussing topics such as contemporary Arab thought and ideology, Islam in the western world, and storytelling practices among Indigenous groups. In this forum, students focus on Qatar as a case study of issues that include the dynamic cultural interchange of modernity and tradition, economics and politics, and geography and trade. The Doha Seminar is a rare opportunity to engage in a personal exchange of ideas with an extraordinary mix of students, scholars, and leaders from beyond the university.

Other NU-Q courses that SiQ students may register for are offered in the following areas:

Communication

Communication courses offer in-depth analysis and critique of film and cinema from a Middle Eastern perspective and with a unique lens on storytelling. Study of theory and practice is blended with the use of the latest cinematographic camera equipment and 3D-modeling software for personal and group projects.

Journalism & Strategic Communication

NU-Q's Journalism and Strategic Communication program includes courses in news and magazine writing, "on-the-street" reporting and multimedia storytelling, public relations, advanced broadcast production, advanced online storytelling, and documentary production.

Liberal Arts

History, economics, political science, religious studies, literature, biology, and statistics – these are just a few examples from the liberal arts and sciences foundation. Our liberal arts program includes courses relevant to the region, helping students prepare for roles in the world's fast-growing media industries.

1. Making any changes to your flight, including paying any fare difference and/or change fees

Once the residence visa process is complete, students who wish to travel may do so, but they will be responsible for all arrangements, costs, and any visa requirements. All travel outside of Qatar would only be possible when the student does not have class meetings or other academic requirements.

The Semester in Qatar Program ends at the end of NU-Q's fall semester. NU-Q cannot support SiQ students who choose to stay in Qatar or travel outside of Qatar beyond the end of the NU-Q fall term. You may decide independently to remain in Qatar beyond the end of SiQ program, or to travel elsewhere before returning to Evanston.

For students considering travel after their Semester in Qatar experience, it is essential to know that it is not possible to re-enter to Qatar once the residence visa cancellation process has begun. Students should carefully review the visa information section of this guide to better understand the entry and exit processes for Qatar. Any SiQ student who decides to travel outside of Qatar should inform the SiQ Coordinator of their travel plans and dates. Any changes to the program supported travel would require completion of the NU-Q student travel waiver and the students are responsible for:
